

1) Reread the first page, what does the author mean that ". . . in some ways we are returning to that village" when referring to the Internet.

2) a) What does the author mean when she states "In my ancestral village back in Ireland, people had the advantage of context."?

b) How does context in the village compare to context on the Internet?

3) What does the author advocate for or against? Cite evidence from the passage.

